

mercaptan. These potential translation and summary problems were not presented to EPA during the public comment period, nor was the Agency independently aware of the original Russian source. Given the Agency's longstanding intent to base its decisions on sound science and the potential problems posed by the above information, EPA believes good cause exists to issue this Administrative Stay to allow parties time to review the full information and prepare and submit comment on this point through the pending Federal Register notice.

3. Analysis of exposure to hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan. Several representatives of the regulated community have expressed concern that, in listing hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan, EPA was unclear in its application of the statutory criteria. Among other things, charges have been made that EPA's decision not to include evidence of exposure in deciding to list hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan on the basis of chronic human toxicity was inconsistent with past Agency practice. These charges raise important and potentially far reaching issues of the Agency's interpretation of its mandate under the statute.

EPA does not agree that it has inconsistently approached the issue of the use of exposure analysis in EPCRA section 313 listings. However, many members of the regulated community have expressed dissatisfaction, alleging that the Agency has neither consistently or correctly addressed the issue of exposure. The Agency believes that a consistent approach to the EPCRA section 313 listing process is both necessary and important and that, given the charges of inconsistency with respect to exposure analysis, the public deserves an opportunity to be presented with further clarification of the Agency's position on this critical issue. A more complete discussion of this issue will be provided in the pending Federal Register notice.

4. Legal authority. As described above, the Agency believes that this Administrative Stay is appropriate and in the interests of justice, given the allegations of procedural and substantive deficiencies surrounding the Agency's listing of these two chemicals, and the resulting controversy and confusion in the regulated community. Although the Agency does not regard today's action as a rule, were it to be viewed as a rule, the Agency believes that there is good cause for issuing it without prior notice and opportunity for comment and for making it immediately effective. Under section 313(a), facilities face a current and ongoing obligation to collect information about releases of hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan. Such activities are potentially quite burdensome, particularly for any facility made subject to section 313 reporting requirements for the first time because of the listing of these two chemicals. Until such time as the issues described in this document are resolved, EPA believes that today's Administrative Stay is necessary. As stated above, EPA will be issuing a notice in the Federal Register to begin addressing these issues and will move with dispatch toward final resolution of the status of these two chemicals.

In addition, this Administrative Stay is authorized by 5 U.S.C. section 705, which provides that an agency may postpone the effective date of action taken by it when justice so requires, pending judicial review. No petition for review has been formally filed as of this date with respect to the listing of hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan. However, both the Chemical Manufacturers Association and the American Forest and Paper Association have told the Agency that unless administrative action is taken to resolve the issues outlined in today's document, a prompt legal challenge will be brought. These two organizations represent the interests of a large portion of the facilities subject to section 313, including those affected by the listing of hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan. The Agency believes that rather than going through costly and potentially protracted litigation, an Administrative Stay coupled with a Federal Register notice and opportunity to comment is both consistent with the goal of the TRI program to involve the public in the resolution of important issues and clearly in the interests of justice.

Medicaid Program; Eligibility and Coverage Requirements

AGENCY: Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), HHS.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: This final rule withdraws regulations setting forth a mandatory budgetary method for determining financial eligibility for individuals who are not receiving or deemed to be receiving Federal cash assistance but whose financial eligibility for Medicaid is being determined through the application of financial criteria of the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program. These regulations were previously issued as part of a final rule with comment period originally published on January 19, 1993, and were to be effective October 18, 1994.

This final rule also makes conforming technical changes, as a result of this withdrawal, to the remainder of the January 19, 1993, final rule and reaffirms the August 18, 1994, effective date of this remaining part.

These changes are being made as a result of consideration of public comments received.

EFFECTIVE DATE: August 18, 1994.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

On January 19, 1993 (58 FR 4931), we published in the Federal Register a final rule with comment period that amended the requirements for coverage of certain groups of individuals under Medicaid and the requirements for determining Medicaid eligibility. Because the new administration wanted to fully review the policies in these regulations, on February 19, 1993, we published a notice in the Federal Register (58 FR 9120) delaying the effective dates and compliance dates of the final rule with comment period for 6 months. These dates were extended for two additional 6-month periods in subsequent notices published in the Federal Register on August 23, 1993 (58 FR 44457) and February 18, 1994 (59 FR 8138).

These regulations incorporated into the Medicaid regulations substantive changes made in the composition of eligibility groups of individuals and in the criteria used to determine their financial eligibility under Medicaid. The substantive changes were initially made by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (OBRA '81), Public Law 97-35, and the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (TEFRA), Public Law 97-248, and further amended by the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 (DRA), Public Law 98-369; the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (COBRA), Public Law 99-272; the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 (OBRA '86), Public Law 99-509; the Medicare and Medicaid Patient and Program Protection Act of 1987, Public Law 100-93; the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (OBRA '87), Public Law 100-203; the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 (MCCA), Public Law 100-360; the Family Support Act of 1988, Public Law 100-485; the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (OBRA '89), Public Law 101-239; and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (OBRA '90), Public Law 101-508. In addition, the document contained changes made as a result of administrative decisions to improve program administration and efficiency.

Basically, the January 1993 rule had two parts with different effective dates. The first part codified a number of statutory changes dating as far back as 1981. This part was classified as a final rule. As extended by the subsequent notices to the January 1993 publication, the effective date for these regulations is August 18, 1994.

The second part of the January 1993 rule set forth a mandated budgeting method for determining the financial eligibility of individuals who are not receiving or deemed to be receiving Federal cash assistance but whose financial eligibility for Medicaid is being determined through application of the financial criteria under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program (referred to as "AFDC-related non-cash assistance individuals"). This part was classified as a final rule with comment period. As extended by the subsequent notices to the January 1993 rule, the effective date for this part is October 18, 1994.

The budgetary method set forth in the regulations was developed to clarify contradictory provisions in the Social Security Act (the Act) that had resulted in litigation. Basically, title XIX of the Act (section 1902(a)(10)) requires that the methods of the Federal cash assistance program most closely related to the individual's status be used to determine income and resources for purposes of Medicaid eligibility. At the same time, title XIX (section 1902(a)(17)(D)) prohibits use of some of those same methods without specifying what should be used in their place. That is, section 1902(a)(17)(D) of the Act prohibits the consideration of income and resources of family members as available to applicants and recipients (unless actually made available) except (1) an applicant or recipient for his or her respective spouse; and (2) parents for their children who are either under 21 or who are blind and disabled regardless of age. This requirement became a problem for AFDC-related non-cash assistance cases when an AFDC statutory change in 1984 mandated that all family members living together be considered one family unit for AFDC eligibility purposes and that the income and resources of all family members be pooled. As a result, AFDC sometimes requires attributing income and resources from persons other than spouses or parents (siblings, stepparents, grandparents, legal guardians, and alien sponsors) as available to the applicant or recipient. Use of the AFDC methods for cases involving income from persons other than spouses or parents, however, is contrary to section 1902(a)(17)(D) of the Act.

Since 1984, courts in a number of jurisdictions have ruled that section 1902(a)(17)(D) of the Act, which limits whose income and resources can be counted (unless actually made available), overrides section 1902(a)(10) of the Act, which requires that the AFDC methods be used to determine Medicaid eligibility for AFDC-related non-cash assistance cases. These rulings left open the issue of what method should be used uniformly among States. Currently, States are using a variety of methods for determining income for Medicaid eligibility purposes.

In response to our request for public comments on the January 1993 rule, we received many objections to the budgeting method set forth in the regulations. Specifically, we set forth in the January 1993 rule a prorating method of determining eligibility for AFDC-related non-cash assistance individuals. Under this method, individual members of the Medicaid budgetary unit would have their income and resource eligibility determined using separate standards that are calculated based on proration of existing standards. Parents' countable income and resources would be prorated equally among their dependents living in the home, including non-Supplemental Security Income dependents who may not be members of the budgetary unit. The proration would also take into account the needs of the parents. We also addressed how certain types of income would be counted and how certain types of disregards would be calculated.

We received comments from 13 States and 7 special interest groups. With one exception, all of the commenters objected to the budgeting method in these regulations. These commenters stated that the new procedure was error prone and unnecessarily complex. In addition, they believed that the required system and manual changes and personnel retraining would result in significant administrative costs.

We considered these comments, especially in the light of health care reform legislation. We also worked with the Medicaid Eligibility Technical Advisory Group (ETAG) to develop an acceptable policy. The ETAG prefers a policy that minimizes the disruption of current approaches. We also met with recipient advocates who endorse allowing States a choice of several options, but strongly oppose allowing the budgeting method in the referenced regulation to be one of these options.

Consequently, we are withdrawing the regulations containing the mandatory budgetary method for determining financial eligibility for AFDC-related non-cash assistance individuals. By doing this, we are allowing States flexibility, within any constraints imposed by court orders or agreements with recipient advocate groups, to interpret the current provisions in the law. That is, at this time, in the absence of specific regulatory guidance on the methodologies for establishing income and resource eligibility for AFDC-related non-cash assistance individuals, States will be required to use methodologies that comply with the statute and any applicable court orders.

II. Provisions of the Final Regulation

As a result of our decision to withdraw the regulations that require States to use a mandatory budgetary method for determining financial eligibility for AFDC-related non-cash assistance individuals, we are making the following changes to the January 1993 rule:

- We have withdrawn §§ 435.604, 435.606, 436.604, and 436.606. These sections contained the procedures for determining income and resource eligibility for AFDC-related non-cash assistance groups.
- We have removed and reserved § 435.113(b) and § 436.111(b)(2). These paragraphs required States to provide Medicaid to individuals denied AFDC because of the involuntary inclusion of all eligible siblings living in the home as members of AFDC filing units.
- We have removed and reserved § 435.600(b) and § 436.600(b). These sections referred respectively to § 435.604 and § 436.604, which have been removed.
- We have revised § 435.601 and § 436.601 by removing paragraph (e) in each section. These paragraphs contain criteria for exceptions to financial application eligibility methodologies and State plan requirements that are no longer applicable. We also have corrected related cross-references in paragraph (b) and (f)(1) of each section.
- We have revised § 435.602 by removing and reserving paragraph (d) and § 436.602 by removing and reserving paragraph (c). These paragraphs contain requirements for determining financial responsibility of relatives and other individuals for AFDC-related non-cash assistance groups. We also have corrected related cross-references in §§ 435.602(a), 436.602(a), and 436.602(a)(2).

The remainder of the January 1993 rule is unchanged and is effective on August 18, 1994.

III. Regulatory Impact Statement

We generally prepare a final regulatory flexibility analysis that is consistent with the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA) (5 U.S.C. 601 through 612), unless the Secretary certifies that a regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. For purposes of the RFA, we consider all Medicaid providers as small entities. Individuals and States are not included in the definition of a small entity.

In addition, section 1102(b) of the Act requires the Secretary to prepare a regulatory impact analysis for any rule that may have a significant impact on the operations of a substantial number of small rural hospitals. Such an analysis must conform to the provisions of section 604 of the RFA. For purposes of section 1102(b) of the Act, we define a small rural hospital as a hospital with fewer than 50 beds that is located outside a metropolitan statistical area.

This final rule revises the January 19, 1993, final rule with comment period. We have decided to withdraw the second part of that rule which basically codified a mandatory budgetary method for determining financial eligibility for AFDC-related non-cash assistance individuals. We concluded, along with a number of other entities, that this provision would result in significant administrative costs. The mandatory budget method has, therefore, been withdrawn.

This final rule will take effect on August 18, 1994. We believe that the withdrawal of the referenced regulations minimizes any unnecessary burden on the public, and that the best regulatory options have been selected. Further, we believe that these regulations will not lead to increased costs. Therefore, we have determined that these provisions will have a negligible cost effect and that a regulatory impact analysis is not required.

We have determined, and the Secretary certifies, that this final rule will not result in a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and will not have a significant impact on the operations of a substantial number of small rural hospitals. For these reasons, we are not preparing analyses for either RFA or section 1102(b) of the Act.

This final rule does not contain information collection requirements; therefore, it is not subject to Office of Management and Budget (OMB) review under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980.

In accordance with the provisions of Executive Order 12866, this final rule was reviewed by OMB.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY

44 CFR Part 65

Changes in Flood Elevation Determinations

AGENCY: Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: modified base (100-year) flood elevations are finalized for the communities listed below. These modified elevations will be used to calculate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents.

EFFECTIVE DATES: The effective dates for these modified base (100-year) flood elevations are indicated on the following table and revise the Flood Insurance Rate Map(s) in effect for each listed community prior to this date.

ADDRESSES: The modified base flood elevations for each community are available for inspection at the office of the Chief Executive Officer of each community. The respective addresses are listed in the following table.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Michael K. Buckley, P.E., Chief, Hazard Identification Branch, Mitigation Directorate, 500 C Street, SW., Washington, DC 20472, (202) 646-2756.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Federal Emergency Management Agency makes the final determinations listed below of the final determinations of modified base (100-year) flood elevations for each community listed. These modified elevations have been published in newspapers of local circulation and ninety (90) days have elapsed since that publication. The Associate Director has resolved any appeals resulting from this notification.

The modified base (100-year) flood elevations are not listed for each community in this notice. However, this rule includes the address of the Chief Executive Officer of the community where the modified base (100-year) flood elevation determinations are available for inspection.

The modifications are made pursuant to Section 206 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, 42 U.S.C. 4105, and are in accordance with the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, 42 U.S.C. 4001 et seq., and with 44 CFR Part 65.

For rating purposes, the currently effective community number is shown and must be used for all new policies and renewals.

The Modified base (100-year) flood elevations are the basis for the floodplain management measures that the community is required to either adopt or to show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or to remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).

These modified elevations, together with the floodplain management criteria required by 44 CFR 60.3, are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean that the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their floodplain management requirements. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements of its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State, or regional entities.

These modified elevations are used to meet the floodplain management requirements of the NFIP and are also used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings built after these elevations are made final, and for the contents in these buildings.

The changes in base (100-year) flood elevations are in accordance with 44 CFR 65.4.

National Environmental Policy Act

This rule is categorically excluded from the requirements of 44 CFR Part 10, Environmental Consideration. No environmental impact assessment has been prepared.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Associate Director, Mitigation Directorate, certifies that this rule is exempt from the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act because modified base (100-year) flood elevations are required by the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, 42 U.S.C. 4105, and are required to maintain community eligibility in the NFIP. No regulatory flexibility analysis has been prepared.

Regulatory Classification

This proposed rule is not a significant regulatory action under the criteria of Section 3(f) of Executive Order 12866 of September 30, 1993, Regulatory Planning and Review, 58 FR 51735.

Executive Order 12612, Federalism

This rule involves no policies that have federalism implications under Executive Order 12612, Federalism, dated October 26, 1987.

Executive Order 12778, Civil Justice Reform

This rule meets the applicable standards of Section 2(b)(2) of Executive Order 12778.
